

OUTLAWS SHOT.

They Murdered a Merchant and Assaulted His Wife.

The Couple Were Attacked While on the Way to Visit Friends.

Troops Had No Difficulty in Following the Trail of the Villains—They Made a Desperate Resistance and Eight Men Were Killed—Two Taken and Shot.

MORELLO, Mex., Jan. 16.—The particulars of a terrible crime, which was perpetrated near Cuernavaca, this state, have reached here.

Padre Malevo, a well-known merchant of Xalatlaco, accompanied by his wife, left home a few evenings ago to visit friends in Cuernavaca.

They were making the journey in a light conveyance, and were within a few miles of their destination, when a band of ten outlaws attacked them. Mr. Malevo was murdered and robbed and his wife outraged by the villains. The news of the crime spread rapidly.

The unfortunate woman was taken to Plangustengo, where she escaped, and related her story to the military and federal authorities. The commander of the military garrison there immediately ordered out a detachment of twenty-five troops, led by Capt. Merico Cosco, to go in pursuit of the perpetrators of the foul deed. The troops had no difficulty in following the trail of the villains and in a few hours came upon them in their rendezvous in the chapparel of a mountain ravine near Xalatlaco. The outlaws made a desperate resistance and kept up a fight until eight of them had been killed. The other two were captured and have been shot. None of the soldiers were killed. A large amount of stolen property recovered.

The secretary said that he was inclined to favor the scheme as a good and feasible one. The subcommittee requested him to have the details of the matter investigated.

BUTLER'S REMAINS

Viewed for the Last Time—A Crowd of Admirers Almost Transformed into a Mob.

LOWELL, Mass., Jan. 16.—At Gen. Butler's late residence on Belvidere hill Sunday morning private funeral services were held. Rev. Dr. St. John Chamber, of St. Anne's Episcopal church, read the office for the dead. The body was in the drawing-room. The stars and stripes were not on the coffin during the private funeral services. President Harrison's wreath and a couple of ferns and lilies were laid upon the coffin. There was no eulogy and no address by the clergyman.

After the short service, closing with the Lord's Prayer, those present looked upon the general for the last time.

A detachment of comrades of Post 43, G. A. R., reached the house directly after the private funeral exercises. Their standards were draped, and the banner of the post, bearing a portrait of the dead commander, was also in mourning. Col. Dimon, who has charge of the arrangements for the funeral, was in command.

Comrades bore the body from the house to the hearse, drawn by four horses. A wild wind was blowing from the river over the hill. The veterans suffered, but not a man sought shelter. As the body was carried from the portals of the house the drums of the band rumbled, the colors were dipped and the company saluted.

When the march to the hall was taken up arms were reversed and the officers fell to the rear of the detachment. The streets were crowded as the band signaled by dirges the passage of the general's body from the house to Huntington hall, where the body was to lie in state. A great crowd was waiting to be admitted to the hall. In the hall the coffin was placed in the center of the floor. From the ceiling to the floor a wall of black extended. The dim light did not extend to this wall of black and the effect was dismal and gruesome. Grand Army men guarded the casket. On the coffin rested the sword and epaulettes that were worn from Lowell to the Gulf and back again. Behind the catafalque rested a bank of flowers that had come from President Harrison, from the convicts of the state prison, and from all classes of people between those extremes. President Harrison's wreath was placed in the coffin in Washington. Senators Dawes, Chandler, and Hale, Gov. Russell, Hon. Frederick Douglass, militia companies and societies and friends in Lowell, Boston, New York, Washington, Chicago and other places sent pieces that took up one side of the hall.

When the crowd was admitted to the hall they almost carried the doors off their hinges. They struggled up stairs and bowed over the police, who tried to restrain them. Shouts and cries awoke the echoes of the hall where the dead man lay. Huntington hall, whenever Gen. Butler appeared there in life, saw turbulent scenes, but those of Sunday surpassed anything ever seen before at the old hall. Down in the streets thousands pressed forward when they saw the doors open. All the afternoon a steady stream of people poured in, but the crowds did not diminish. The exit was on Shattuck street, and a stream of people poured through that door. No impression could be made in the mass that clamored for admission on the other side of the hall. Late in the afternoon the doors were closed, and the officers had an hour's rest. It was designed to close the hall at 5 o'clock until Monday morning, but at 6 o'clock they were opened again. This time the people were beaten into lines, and more order was maintained up to 11 o'clock, when the final closing was made. Hundreds left the place without getting in, and many others who wanted to get out of the jam were forced to wait and be swept into the hall by the stream.

There will be another crush Monday morning, as those who failed Sunday will try then. The preparations are for a great event, greater than Lowell has ever witnessed.

IN THE DRAGNET.

A Royalist Editor Implicated in the Panama Scandal.

There is Profound Relief in Republican Circles Over the Fact.

Charles De Lesseps Charges Arthur Meyer, Editor of the Gaulois, With Receiving 100,000 Francs From the Panama Co.—Bailout's Conviction Likely.

PARIS, Jan. 16.—There was profound relief in republican circles Saturday over the statement of Charles de Lesseps implicating Arthur Meyer, editor of the Gaulois, as having received 100,000 francs from the Panama Co. This at last brings the royalists into the dragnet, and shows what the friends of the republic have claimed from the beginning of the scandal, that republican officials and journalists did not have a monopoly of Panama corruption.

The fact that four Boulangist deputies are said to be put under strong suspicion by evidence before M. Franqueville is also considered as strengthening the cause of the republic, by showing the hypocrisy of those who assail it in the pretended interest of better government. The government has also been considerably strengthened by the speech of Chancellor von Caprivi on the army bill. This has, in a large degree, diverted attention from Panama affairs, and aroused a deeper interest in the foreign concerns of France and in the necessity of Frenchmen standing together against their enemies abroad. The situation today is therefore improved, and although the Figaro publishes a sensational article, signed by the editor-in-chief, M. Magnard, urging Carnot in interests of the republic to resign, very little is heard of adverse criticism upon the president.

The Figaro's attempt to arouse public feeling against Carnot has fallen flat, and men who vehemently denounced the president Friday were comparatively moderate Saturday. It is generally believed that the worst is known regarding Panama, and that no developments adverse to Carnot are possible. The discredit thrown on the Gaulois has aided greatly in relieving M. Carnot. It will be remembered that the staff of that paper was active in endeavoring, before the Panama commission of the chamber, to connect M. Carnot's name with the Panama corruption, but when cornered had declined, on alleged professional grounds, to give authority for statements made. Ex-Minister of Commerce Jules Roche is also said to be vindicated from the charge that he had shared in the Panama bribery. When first accused, M. Roche had answered in a manner that made a most favorable impression in the chamber. He is a man of rather short stature, and of a slight delicate frame, but his whole appearance wore an air of determination and energy, and he was fairly successful in mastering his emotion, as in clear and firm tones he declared that he could not imagine what machination or denunciation had reduced him to this position, or with what enemy he had to deal; but he could declare that his conscience was perfectly at ease. He would give an emphatic contradiction to all the charges brought against him, adding that these accusations were all the more absurd, seeing that he had not voted on the Panama bill.

The denial then given by M. Roche has been verified to the satisfaction of Magistrate Franqueville, who finds that the initials "J. R." made by the late Baron Reinach on the counterfoil of a check, do not apply to Roche, who will, therefore, be released from accusation of complicity in the Panama corruption. It had been alleged on the strength of these initials that M. Roche had received 80,000 francs from M. Reinach. The evidence against others who have been accused is said to be no stronger than that against M. Roche.

The evidence against ex-Minister of Public Works Bailout continues, according to reports, to grow stronger. Bailout, says the Siecle, admitted that he had received 455,000 francs for supporting the Panama lottery bill. Bailout, it is said, will make no defense to the charges against him. He is deserted by nearly all his friends, although his wife adheres to him with pathetic devotion. There seems a disposition to lay upon Bailout the chief responsibility for the disgrace and loss to the republic resulting from the Panama lottery bill, and the prosecution of the ex-minister will be vigorously pushed.

Jeff Davis' Monument Matters.

Taylor Ellison, resident member of the Jefferson Davis Monument association, says it is probable that the remains of Mr. Davis will be removed from New Orleans to this city for final interment in the early spring; that he has received numbers of satisfactory letters from the collectors of the monument fund, and that when the weather opens permanently a new impetus will be given to the scheme.
